

I am sure I speak on behalf of many XM subscribers when I say I am frustrated by powerful lobbyists who work on behalf of their powerful interests restricting our rights as listeners in the process. Many people enjoy the services and format that XM radio provides and if the large media outlets feel very threatened by this then they should use the free market to compete and make their services better. Trying to silence some of XM radio's services only alienates me from mainstream media even more.